Talk About It:

Part of growing as a reader is learning how to think while you read. Ask each other questions before, during, and after reading:

- What was most important about what we just read?
- How did the characters change over time?
- What was your favorite part of that section?
- Did you read anything that might impact your life? How?
- Does this text remind you of something you have read, seen, or heard before? How?

Get Caught Reading:

Set an example by reading in public. Let everyone see you reading a newspaper or browsing through a novel on the beach or beside the pool. Liven up chore time or meal time by taking turns working while one person reads aloud a favorite book or an exciting new novel. Have fun!

Why should students read during the summer?

University of Tennessee, Knoxville, faculty members Richard Allington and Anne McGill-Franzen have completed a three-year study showing that students lose up to three months of learning every summer—skills they worked hard to acquire during the school year. However, the study showed a significantly higher level of reading achievement in students who took part in summer reading at home.

Allington compares the slide in reading ability to an athlete's fitness. "Just like hockey players lose some of their skills if they stay off their skates and off the ice for three months, children who do not read in the summer lose two to three months of reading development," Allington said.

Summer Reading

Rising English IV Students

"It is what you read when you don't have to that determines what you'll be when you can't help it."

- Author Oscar Wilde

Theme:
On Being British

The Themes

Many of the things students will read and write in English IV explore historically and currently what it means to be British and what place that gives one in the world. Some of the books on these lists are more challenging than others, but all explore these themes through events (plot), characters, and conflicts.

Summer Reading Project

Consult with teachers and/or teacher librarians to choose one book from each list (fiction and informational) or other titles from each genre that fit the theme. With parent approval of the choices, students will read the two books over the summer.

Teachers of HONORS English IV classes will choose one title from the brochure for required summer reading in addition to a second title (chosen by student or teacher) from the brochure or another source, for a total of two selections for HONORS classes.

Prospective AP Language and AP Literature students should contact that teacher for specific expectations. Each school will share rewards and expectations for when school starts.

These books and others like them are available not only in school libraries, but also in your public libraries and local book stores. Have a great summer and enjoy the magic of books!
